

A laurel wreath made of two branches of leaves, one on the left and one on the right, curving upwards and then downwards to meet at the bottom. At the bottom center, where the branches meet, is a black line that forms a heartbeat or ECG pattern, with a sharp peak and a sharp dip.

RECOMMENDED BY

CINEPUULSE

cinepuulse.com